Announces Principles.

Announce these principles and poli-cies which will govern my administration.

If aver a compulsory school system of at least nine months.

A minimum living wage for teachers so that the citizens of tomorrow may be trained and educated by those who know, through experience, the justice and efficiency of a free government.

Old age pensions for dependent mothers.

Memoralizing congress to give finan-cial relief to the service men of the world war.

An up-to-date department of agricul-ture with a market bureau, so that the farmers may be aided not only in pro-ducing but in marketing the products of the farm the farm.

More liberal pengions for confederate soldiers, so that the old age of these gallant hences may be made more comfortable.

A square deal for labor and capital, so that the fruits of that partnership may not only be enjoyed by the actual partners, but also by the great silent partner, the public, which is always the principal loser in strike between capital and labor.

Legislation divorcing the school system from politics.

Legislation divorcing the school sys-tem from politics.

Legislation separating the bighway department and the penul and charita-ble institutions from politics, and plac-ing all connected therewith, from sup-crintendent to Janitor, under a rigid civil service examination after their appointments have been made, with competency and merit alone the con-trolling factors.

A budget system by which the ex-competency and merit alone the controlling factors.

A budget system by which the expenses of the state will be kept within its revenues.

A system of rigid economy and the lopping off of all unnecessary offices so that the horde of job hunters now cluttering up the lobbies of the hotels and filling the pullman palace cars may be returned to useful occupations of production, and cease to work politics and ralse taxes for those who toil, while these political appointers strut in idleness.

The ratification of the equal suffrage amendment. The enactment of legislation to emancipate women, giving them all the political and legal rights now enjoyed by men.

Law Enforcement.

Law Enforcement.

The strict enforcement of all laws.
The maintenance of the present prohibition laws, and active co-operation with the federal government in their enforcement.

with the federal government in their enforcement.

The repeal of the inheritance tax on life insurance, which is a direct tax on widows and orphaus.

A constitutional convention for the consideration of iax amendments only, the tax amendments to be submitted to the people for ratification or rejection, and the borrowing of memory precision, and the borrowing of memory to respect to the state until such constitutional tax amendments may be ratified, or the establishment of a lax commission representing every industry and interest to be faxed, to fermulate a scientific and modern tax system and administer the same

One of the largest crowds that has ever attended the markets was present at Forrest park and in a comparatively short while all of the growers had sold out and many would be patrons were gnable to make purchases. The market at McLemore and Wellington was very unsatisfactory. Only two wagons were at this market and their products were far below the standard and their prices above those of retail stores it is said. Prospective buyers refused in many instances to accept the inferior goods and some of them visited the Forrest park market. One buyer from the South Memphismarket who was unable to obtain sutsfactory products at that point bought One of the largest crowds that has isfactory products at that point bought an entire truckload of produce from one of the growers at Forrest park. The next markets will be held on Tuesday at Forrest park and Market
